

ABSTRACT

A system and method of selectively suggesting goods and services is provided.

Generally, data is received from a customer, where the data specifies goods or services that 5 are selected by the customer. A suggestion is then made to the customer via use of the data where the suggestion is based on information associated with the customer.